Your kindness can deliver its own reward

New tax rules provide a better way to claim charitable donations

Your compassion and support for worthy causes is commendable. But if you’re taking required minimum distributions (RMDs) from your IRA and writing checks for your charitable donations, you may not be getting the maximum tax deduction. By making a small change in how you donate, you can get the highest tax benefit you’re entitled to. It’s only a small change to the way you claim your donations, but it can potentially make a big difference in the tax benefits you receive.

I urge all Bishop Garcia Diego High School donors to contact Dan to learn how to use Qualified Charitable Distributions to receive the maximum tax benefit they are entitled to.

You can maximize your tax deduction while helping your school. Find out how.
